

THE UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION
IN COOPERATION WITH THE
AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION

Announces a

FELLOWSHIP IN CONGRESSIONAL OPERATIONS

For Executives

Mid-November, 1967 - September, 1968

" No Government official can be completely effective if he does not understand the role of Congress in our Democracy. "

*President Lyndon B. Johnson
September 15, 1965*

BACKGROUND

Many of the basic responsibilities of the Federal Government are shared jointly by the executive and legislative branches. Others are divided in such a way that interdependence between Congress and the executive branch necessarily results. Under our system of government, therefore, a sound understanding of the legislative branch is essential to a proper understanding of executive responsibilities and operations.

President Johnson is taking aggressive action to ensure maximum cooperation of the Executive Branch with the Congress. He is concerned that executives and managers throughout Government are aware of the functions and problems of Congress and that they are responsive to its needs. On September 15, 1965, the President stated:

"Too often in our history the Executive and Legislative Branches have been reduced to suspicion and to petty bickering. And too often the cause of progress has suffered because of it.

"Although our Constitution divides us into separate branches, it charges all of us with the same mission—that is, to serve the American public. Some disagreement between the branches of Government is quite natural. But cooperation between the branches of Government is quite imperative.

"I expect every member of my Administration to understand this and to apply this to the day-to-day operations of the Government.

"I am not just talking about Congressional relations, I am talking about understanding the job that Congress has to do. And I am talking about trying to help the Congress do that job that it has to do.

"We have entered a new era, I think, of respect and good will between the Executive and Legislative Branches of the Government. I intend to do everything I can to encourage this respect and to promote this good will."

PURPOSE

This Fellowship is designed to provide an opportunity for some of the most promising young federal executives to acquire a thorough understanding of Congressional Operations. As they progress to positions of greater responsibility, this understanding should become increasingly valuable to the Fellows and to the programs they serve.

ABOUT THE FELLOWSHIP

Persons selected will participate in a variety of assignments designed to develop their knowledge and understanding of Congressional operations. As

Fellows from executive agencies, they will share activities with other members of the APSA Congressional Fellowship Program who come mainly from journalism, law, and college teaching. These activities include:

- Attendance at an intensive and comprehensive Orientation Program on the legislative branch conducted by the American Political Science Association in preparation for later work assignments.
- Full-time work assignments in the offices of Congressmen and Senators and with staff members of Congressional Committees.
- Participation in weekly seminar meetings with leading congressional, governmental and academic figures.

From these and other planned experiences, fellows will be expected to gain:

- Thorough knowledge of the organization of Congress.
- A well-balanced understanding of the legislative process and the factors and forces which influence it.
- Some Congressional perspective of national objectives and executive branch operations.
- A sound grasp of the scope and variety of Congressional responsibilities and their relationship to the total process of government.
